Munny Journey partners with Two Washington State Credit Unions

Saving a dollar a day is easy with kids accounts

Coeur d'Alene ID, February 15, 2009: Two Washington State Credit Unions are giving away free copies of Munny Journey with the opening of select savings accounts. The two credit unions are Washington State Employees Credit Union (WSECU) and PrimeSource Credit Union.

Munny Journey is a 'Keepsake Journal for Baby's First Money'. It was created by financial advisor and financial literacy advocate Brad Dugdale. The journal is a unique adaptation of traditional baby journals with pages to record money 'firsts' such as 'first dollar' and 'first investment'. The usefulness of the journal comes from the fact that it's actually designed for parents, explaining stocks, bonds, mutual funds and the power of compounding interest over time.

WSECU has begun offering "Munny Bunny" accounts to members that come with a gift of the Journal and plush bunny. "We want all our member moms and dads to start WSECU Munny Bunny savings accounts for their children," said Kristina Walters, WSECU vice president of marketing and business development. "It is more than just cute. The journals are filled with information that educates parents about starting young to save smart."

PrimeSource Credit Union uses the journals with select savings accounts and as gifts for new Moms and Dads.
